CHEPSTOW:

High numbers enjoyed a massive advantage advantage in straight- course races in 2000 and the course management duly took steps to eradicate the faster strip, using the same 'earthquake' machine as had been employed @Goodwood in the late 90s. This had led to little in the way of a draw bias since.

LEICESTER DRAW:

There was a four year spell between 1998 and 2001 when the centre-to-far-side strip (middle to high) enjoyed a decisive advantage over the stands' rail, jockeys eventually choosing to avoid the near side. However, that's changed recently, with very low numbers more than holding their own.

EPSOM DRAW:

When the going is on the soft side, jockeys tack over to the stands' side for the better ground (this strip rides quicker in such conditions as the course cambers away from the stands' rail). In 5f races, the stalls are invariably placed on the stands' side, so when the going is soft the majority of the runners are on the best ground from the outset. Prominent-racers drawn low in round course races are able to take the shortest route around Tattenham Corner, and on faster ground have a decisive edge 6f,7f and 1m114yds. Over 5f, high numbers used to hold quiet an advantage, but the bias is not so great these days.

NOTE:

TATTERSALLS RULE 4 APPLIES TO ALL BETS WHEN A HORSE IS WITHDRAWN & THERE IS INSUFFICIENT TIME FOR A NEW MARKET.THERE WILL BE NO TWO-UPS BETTING IN GREYHOUND RACING.

DONCASTER DRAW:

There's been very little between the two sides since the course re-opened. Jockeys now tend to swerve the stands' rail (high) on good or slower ground, instead preferring to head for the centre.

HAMILTON DRAW:

Extensive drainage work was carried out in the winter of 2002 in a bid level up the two sides of the track but, after encouraging early results, the natural bias in favour of high numbers (far side) kicked in again. This can be altered by watering on faster going, though, and low numbers were definitely favoured under such conditions in 2008 before a less clear cut pattern last year when jockeys more often than not headed for the centre. High numbers are best over 1m 65yds, thanks to runners encountering a tight right-handed loop soon after the start.

HAMILTON DRAW:

Extensive drainage work was carried out in the winter of 2002 in a bid level up the two sides of the track but, after encouraging early results, the natural bias in favour of high numbers (far side) kicked in again. This can be altered by watering on faster going, though, and low numbers were definitely favoured under such conditions in 2008 before a less clear cut pattern last year when jockeys more often than not headed for the centre. High numbers are best over 1m 65yds, thanks to runners encountering a tight right-handed loop soon after the start.

EPSOM DRAW:

When the going is on the soft side, jockeys tack over to the stands' side for the better ground (this strip rides quicker in such conditions as the course cambers away from the stands' rail). In 5f races, the stalls are invariably placed on the stands' side, so when the going is soft the majority of the runners are on the best ground from the outset. Prominent-racers drawn low in round course races are able to take the shortest route around Tattenham Corner, and on faster ground have a decisive edge 6f,7f and 1m114yds. Over 5f, high numbers used to hold quiet an advantage, but the bias is not so great these days.

PRINCE AMONG MEN AT LEICESTER

By Ashley Iveson, Press Association Sport

Favourite backers had their fingers burnt when Daira Prince was beaten at Yarmouth a fortnight ago, but he can reward those who keep the faith in the Thistleton Gap Handicap at Leicester.

Following three runs in maidens, Roger Varian's Dubawi colt made his handicap debut at Yarmouth in June and although the winning margin was only a head, there was an air of authority about his performance.

He was the even-money market leader on his return to the seaside track last time out, but he did not seem as at home in the rain-softened ground and finished fourth, albeit only beaten just over a length.

Back on a sounder surface and with just three rivals to beat, Daira Prince looks difficult to oppose in the hands of Andrea Atzeni.

Sir Michael Stoute and Ryan Moore can combine to land the EBF Stallions Breeding Winners Fillies' Handicap with Parlance.

The Cheveley Park-owned filly suggested her turn was not far away when third on her latest outing at Newmarket three weeks ago.

The return to a quicker ground and the step up to seven furlongs should see her in a better light and with just five runs under her belt in total, there is plenty of scope for improvement.

Albert Street shaped with abundant promise on his recent racecourse debut and is entitled to find the necessary improvement to open his account at Hamilton.

The son of Acclamation was a relatively unconsidered 22-1 shot for his Beverley introduction less than a fortnight ago and a tardy start put him on the back foot straight away.

However, there were clear signs of raw talent once the penny dropped, with Bryan Smart's youngster doing his best work in the final furlong to finish a close-up fourth.

Albert Street should have learnt from that initial experience and with the fast ground likely to suit, a bold bid is anticipated in the British Stallion Studs EBF Novice Stakes.

The most valuable race of the afternoon in Scotland is the Racing UK Handicap, in which Hochfeld looks set to complete a quick-fire hat-trick.

Following a string of decent efforts on the all-weather, the Mark Johnston-trained three-year-old made a successful start to his turf career at Chester at the start of the month.

He returned to the Roodee last weekend and, competing off an 8lb higher mark, absolutely scooted by upwards of eight lengths.

It is hardly surprising Johnston has decided to bring his three-year-old back to action just five days later under the penalty and it looks an excellent opportunity for him to continue his winning run.

Dichato looks the best bet at Epsom's evening fixture.

The American-bred juvenile never threatened to land a blow on his Haydock debut in May, but has been beaten just half a length on each of his last two appearances, both on Newmarket's July Course.

He looks set to encounter the quickest ground he has since Haydock on Thursday and as a son of Scat Daddy, that should suit him ideally.

The ICON Meld Stakes is the main attraction at Leopardstown, with Group Three honours up for grabs.

The Grey Gatsby showed up well on his debut for Dermot Weld and he can feel the benefit of that outing after a long break here.
