MAKER MADE TO MEASURE FOR WELSH NATIONAL

By Nick Robson, Press Association Sport

Git Maker can pull off a long-held plan for Jamie Snowden by winning the Coral Welsh Grand National at Chepstow. Snowden has always thought the extreme test of the Monmouthshire marathon would bring the best out of his nine-year-old and he has been steadily backed in recent weeks. This year conditions are not set to be as testing as usual, with the possibility of it being run on the quickest ground since Carvill's Hill won on good to soft in 1991. That would mean looking away from the stereotypical mud-lovers who can just gallop for longer than their rivals. To that end, Git Maker has the ability to lay up off a strong pace, as he showed when second to a certain Inothewayurthinkin in the Kim Muir of 2024. Third in the Scottish National after that, Snowden was never that happy with him last season but he ran a perfectly nice prep race over hurdles last month. Macktoad made quite an impression on his British bow and can build on that with Grade Two glory in the Coral Finale Juvenile Hurdle. Winner of his bumper start in France back in May, the three-year-old subsequently transferred to the care of Gary and Josh Moore and he was well supported on his Sandown debut. His rider was positive from the off and merely had to shake the reins to come home a cosy winner, with the fourth-placed horse subsequently franking the form with an Exeter victory. Mambonumberfive can continue to progress in the Ladbrokes Wayward Lad Novices' Chase at Kempton. Trained by Ben Pauling, the four-year-old gets a handy weight advantage that could prove crucial in this two-mile affair. As a Grade Two hurdles winner, plenty was to be expected of the Born To Sea gelding and he rose to the occasion when beating a subsequent winner by three-quarters of a length on his chasing bow, with the value of the win firmly underlined by the fact December Gold Cup winner Glengouly was back in third. His margin of victory increased in what was a competitive Newbury affair on his second chase start, with the second winning since, so it makes sense to try his hand in Grade Two company now at a track where he has winning form and is within striking distance of victory on the ratings. Thistle Ask should be able to confirm previous form with Saint Segal by winning the Ladbrokes Desert Orchid Handicap Chase. Twice a winner for James Ewart, Thistle Ask has soared to new heights under the care of Dan Skelton, winning each of his three starts to date and leaping 21lb in the handicap in the process. The eight-year-old really set the seal on his rapid progression when dispatching the reopposing Saint Segal by seven lengths in the Haldon Gold Cup at Exeter last month, making all from out of the weights and showing what a shrewd purchase he was for #11,000. Thistle Ask was having just his fifth outing over fences on that occasion so while the gap is narrowed with his old rival, he still appeals as the runner with something left to give. The Skelton team can also take the Wetherby feature via Madara. The William Hill Castleford Handicap Chase is certainly not the race it once was with Tingle Creek, Badsworth Boy, Waterloo Boy and Viking Flagship on its roll of honour, but it looks an ideal opportunity for this six-year-old.
